VINEYARDS

The Sauvignon Blanc grapes, harvested from our vineyards in the appellation of Rueda, are planted on very sandy soils, which give this wine a marked mineral character and an abundance of fruit aromas. The grapes are destemmed and transferred to the tank presses, and the juice is then clarified and racked into stainless steel fermentation tanks where a slow, temperature controlled fermentation is undertaken. After a short period of yeast lees contact, the wine is bottled young to preserve the crisp and elegant varietal characteristics.
